A New Species?

Rhododendron syringoideum

In 2011 we were fortunate to receive a few packets of rhodo seed from Bob Cherry who accompanied Steve Hootman into New Guinea on a plant-hunting trip.

Over the years it has been interesting to watch the different growth patterns and leaf shapes of the collection appear. After three years R. macgregoriae was the first to flower with typical orange and yellow flowers, and then flowered R. herzogii with long white flushed pink flowers standing proudly above large obovate-elliptic leaves, a larger form than we have been growing at Emu Valley. Then came a very unusual form of R. beyerinckianum with pink flowers.

Three of these seed lots – two from Mt Hagen and one from Mt Wilhelm, were unidentified species making them quite intriguing.

Imagine our excitement as one of the unnamed species set flower buds. These buds looked very much like R. herzogii in size and shape but as they opened the corolla became trumpet shaped, pink and had a delightful perfume. A picture was sent to Steve who was unable to identify but would endeavor to put a name to it. In the mean time the same pictures were sent to Andrew Rouse in Victoria who remarked that we might have a species new to cultivation in Australia. Andrew tentatively named it R. syringoideum. Whatever its name is it will make a delightful addition to our vireya collection and who knows what the other two unnamed seed lots will bring forth. Maurie

Chairman's Report

Jenny Chalk and Tony Simpson have stepped down from their respective roles of Catering Co-Ordinator and Membership Officer. When trying to think of the appropriate wording to acknowledge their contribution I could not go past THANKYOU.

Emu Valley is known world wide for what has been achieved by its members and volunteers and it is people like Jenny and Tony, through their commitment and passion, that have brought us this recognition. So once again to Jenny and Tony ---- THANKYOU.

These two important positions have been taken up by Marilyn Jacques and Anne Holloway as joint Catering Co-Ordinators and Jill Charles is our new Membership Officer. In addition to these changes Steve Locke has joined the Management Committee in his role as Health Safety and Environmental Co-Ordinator.

Cherry Blossom Celebration

A few members have asked why 21 October has been chosen for this year's celebration. The management committee opted for this date following feedback received about previous years being held on the same weekend as the Tulip Festival in Wynyard. People made the comment that they should be apart and there were some stall holders committed to the Tulip Festival who said that they may be interested in being part of the Cherry Blossom Celebration.

Hopefully also by pushing the date out more Cherry Blossoms will be in full bloom than last year.

As with last year's event we will debrief and see how it all goes.

Australian Hearing

It was great to hear (excuse the pun) that the day on February 14 was one the busiest Australian Hearing have had when offering free checks. It was good to see so many members avail themselves of the opportunity and indulge in the Devonshire Teas on offer.

Australian Hearing are now keen to jump on board with us for more joint promotional activities.

Salvation Army Plus

Following the success of the agreement Emu Valley entered into with Work for the Dole Participants to assist with the Nursery Upgrade, we now have another project called the EVRG Garden Maintenance Program where up to six participants will be at the garden two days per week performing much needed tasks such as weeding, distribution of mulch and pathway upkeep. A thank you to Warren Caple for taking the first three participants under his wing.

Hopefully as we progress we will see Salvation Army Plus participants working on a regular basis in all areas including the Tea Room/Kitchen, meeting and greeting and assisting with tours.

Welcome

A big warm Rhodo Garden welcome to new members Jennifer & Russell French, Margaret & James Dorey, John & Anne Hutchinson, Ellis Porter & Jennifer King-Porter, Graeme McShane, and Jade Turnbull.

Sue's Corner

You may notice the absence of Neets' "In the Garden" article this month? Neet is currently on maternity leave, following the safe arrival of Spencer's sister Stella Rose on 16th February. All at Emu Valley extend our congratulations to Neet and Michael and wish them well over the coming months as they adjust to their extended family.

Although the last week of February was the hottest period during summer here at Emu Valley, Autumn has already announced its arrival with the large maple visible from the office window turning a brilliant shade of bronze. Maurie and Pam must be hoping for some good early Autumn rains to quench the thirsty ground, so that their nightly irrigation and watering rounds can taper off.

Without a doubt, the driving force in operating our garden is the efforts of our volunteers. Currently numbering around 70, they run the tea room, cater for functions, look after our visitors, weed, weed and more weed, mulch, build and maintain walking tracks and retaining walls, look after the nursery and its occupants, repair/fix and adapt, plant out and prune. Then there are the one off seasonal tasks, building projects and special events to organise and execute, together with the all the management and compliance duties to attend to. The efforts of our wonderful volunteers, both past and present, are visible, recognised and much appreciated.

Eight of our volunteers have manually uplifted and downloaded 1907 bales of straw in the past month, to complete our annual bale carting. The stacks around the garden will be spread as mulch now that the weeds have been extinguished, in readiness for planting out our new plants in Autumn. A big thank you to all concerned.

One of our volunteers has recently undertaken the task of repairing/replacing/restoring and then repainting the 32 seats we have scattered around the Garden. Having already attended to 8 seats, he reckons he might be finished by next Christmas!

Although we have another four cruise ships this season, so far we have welcomed 1451 cruise ship passengers to our Garden. As these visitors come from all around the world, as well as from mainland Australia, our reputation as a world class tourist destination is magnified by their experience of their time with us. Many return, and others tell us they come at the recommendation of those who have come before. This is most reassuring to all involved in "cruise ship days" – long may it continue! Sue Johnson

Social Meeting Report for 19th February

Once underway, after a late start, those attending our meeting heard information from a recent "brain-storming" session where various ideas and suggestions regarding our garden were floated for consideration.

This was followed by the sharing of dot points from a focus group who looked at ways to improve on last years Cherry Blossom Festival. Such areas as traffic control, easier communications between our members, promoting events and imparting information to visitors on the day, were all given close scrutiny and improvements planned.

Ivan shared information regarding an opportunity for EVRG acquiring some adjacent land to enhance the operations of our garden.

In keeping with the fluctuations of seasonal growth there were few blooms displayed for judging. However a solitary vireya received votes, only to learn later that it was a table decoration from the Emu Valley garden! Cut flower voting did a little better with “Soul Sister”, a rose from Ethel Tavner claiming top honour, followed an entry by Anne Holloway .A total of $58.90 was raised via flower voting, trade table and raffle, with Steve Locke holding the lucky raffle ticket.

To help those who plan well ahead, our next meeting will be held 19th March, however the following meeting is to be on the fourth Sunday - April 23rd, a week after Easter weekend.

And the next brain-storming session will be held on Thursday 16th March at 2.30pm. Pete
